

Tish Harrison Warren

My response to that season has been craving beauty, craving silence—voraciously...I can't read most theological books...they make me angry—not because they're wrong, but because they're not beautiful. They're not written beautifully. . . .

Matthew 18:12-13

What do you think? If a man has a hundred sheep, and one of them has gone astray, does he not leave the ninety-nine on the mountains and go in search of the one that went astray? 13 And if he finds it, truly, I say to you, he rejoices over it more than over the ninety-nine that never went astray.

Known, yet loved anyway

Sister Helen Jean Prejean

.. .the less forgiveable the sin, the more it must be forgiven; the less loveable the person, the more you must find the means to love them.

Everything difficult indicates something more than our theory of life yet embraces, checks some tendency to abandon the strait path, leaving open only the way ahead. But there is a reality of being in which all things are easy and plain—oneness, that is, with the Lord of Life; to pray for this is the first thing; and to the point of this prayer every difficulty hedges and directs us
