

psalms

Jesse Ryan Loskarn

Everyone wants to know why. I've asked God. I've asked myself. I've talked with clergy and counselors and psychiatrists. . . . There seem to be many answers and none at all.

psalms

Jesse Ryan Loskarn

*I should have known better.
...that will be a burden on my soul for the rest of my life.*

psalms

psalms

John Gray

. . .evil is not error, a mistake of the mind, a failure of understanding that can be corrected by smarter thinking. It is something deeper and more constitutive of human life itself. The capacity and propensity for destruction goes with being human. One does not have to be religious to acknowledge this dark fact.

psalms

...every single person alive, as meek and mild as they seem, can be dangerous given the right set of circumstances.

Bryan Cranston

psalms

psalms

psalms

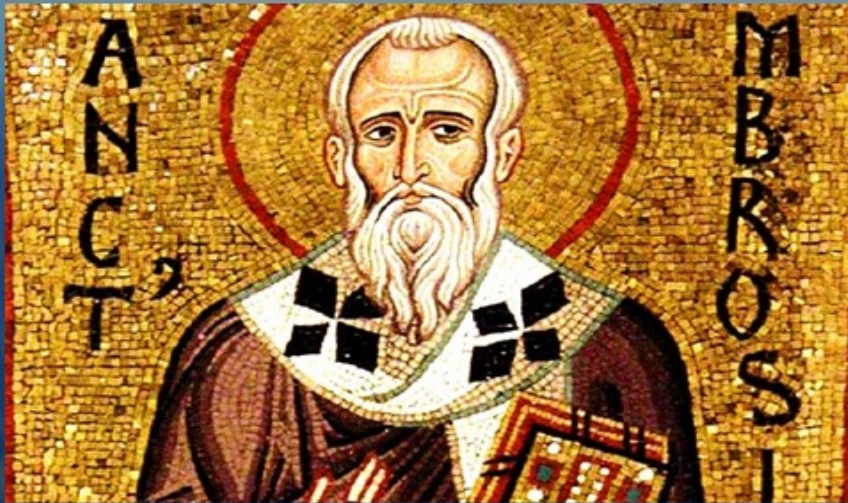

James Luther Mays

My problem is not just the need of pardon for a particular wrong but deliverance from the predicament of myself.

psalms

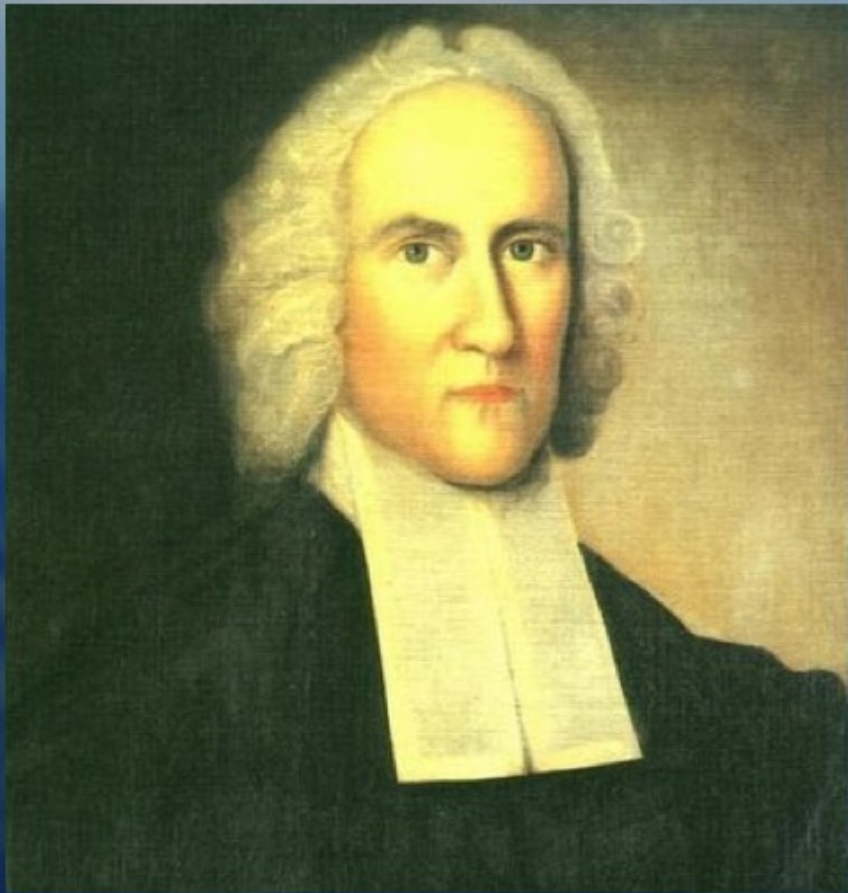

St Ambrose (d. 397)

As soon as I have wept for my sins, I begin to hunger and thirst for righteousness.

psalms

psalms

This doctrine teaches us to think no worse of others than of ourselves; it teaches us that we are by nature, companions in a miserable, helpless condition, which under a revelation of divine mercy, tends to promote mutual compassion.

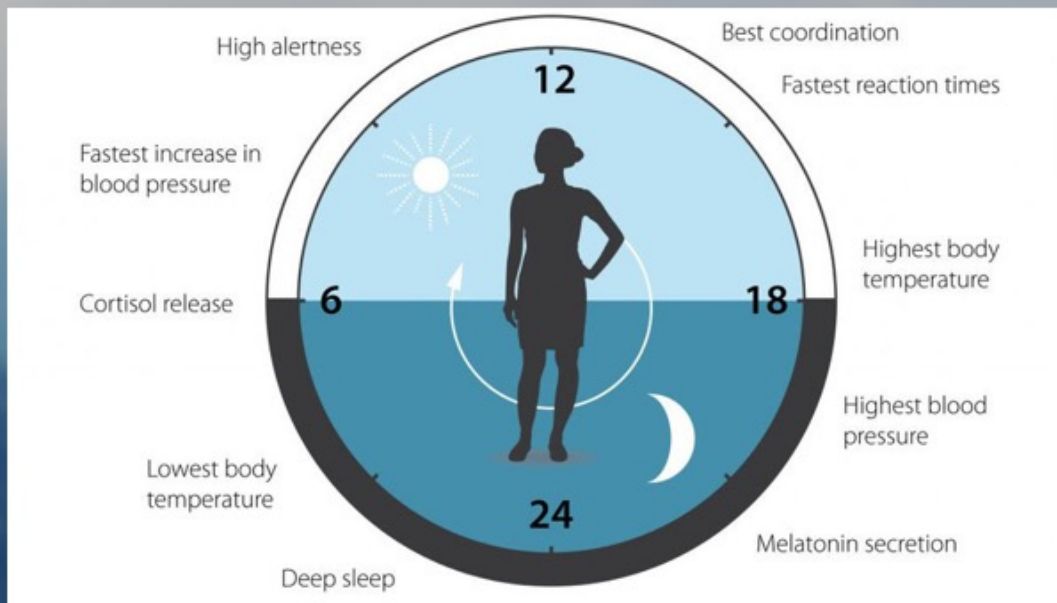

Jonathan Edwards

psalms

Gerard Segher, The Denial of Saint Peter

psalms

Jeffrey C. Hall, Michael Rosbash, and Michael W. Young

psalms

The circadian clock is embedded in our mechanisms of working, our metabolism, it's embedded everywhere, it's a real core feature for understanding life.

psalms

psalms

psalms