John Calvin

The Lord commands all men without exception “to do good”. Yet the great part of them are most unworthy if they be judged by their own merit. But . . . Scripture helps in the best way when it teaches that we are not to consider that men merit of themselves but to look upon the image of God in all men, to which we owe all honor and love.”

Psalm 72:11, 12

May all kings fall down before him, all nations serve him!

*For he delivers the needy when he calls,
the poor and him who has no helper.*

Emperor Julian, (d. 363)

Why do we not observe that it is their [the Christians'] benevolence to strangers, their care for the graves of the dead, and the pretended holiness of their lives that have done most to increase atheism [unbelief of the pagan gods]? For it is disgraceful that, when no Jew ever has to beg, and the impious Galileans [Christians] support not only their own poor but ours as well, all men see that our people lack aid from us. Teach those of the Hellenic faith to contribute to public service of this sort.

C.S. Lewis

If you read history you will find that the Christians who did most for the present world were precisely those who thought most of the next. It is since Christians have largely ceased to think of the other world that they have become so ineffective in this.
