A central thesis then begins to emerge: man is, in his actions and practices, as well as in his fictions, essentially a story-telling animal. He is not essentially, but becomes through his history, a teller of stories that aspire to truth. But the key question for men is not about their own authorship; I can only answer the question 'What am I to do?' if I can answer the prior question' Of what story. . .do I find myself a part.

I don't think anything is more emotionally stabilizing, more clarifying in every way, than gratitude.

Marilynne Robinson

psalms

*Thou that hast giv'n so much to me,
Give one thing more, a grateful heart.
See how thy beggar works on thee
By art.*

George Herbert (d. 1633)

“Gratefulness”

psalms

*Wherefore I cry, and cry again;
And in no quiet canst thou be,
Till I a thankful heart obtain
Of thee:*

psalms

*Not thankful, when it pleaseth me;
As if thy blessings had spare days:
But such a heart, whose pulse may be Thy praise.*
